Blood bank to Haligonians: Lend us your arms

- ▶ Blood donors needed to meet urgent holiday demand in HRM: Canadian Blood Services
- ▶ Donation by appointment takes about an hour

ALY THOMSON
HALIFAX@METRONews.CA

There is always a strong need for blood donations during the holiday season, but the Canadian Blood Services is warning that this year's calendar is working against them even more.

Christmas Day and New Year's Day both fall on a weekend, a time when blood is not collected. Paul Doucet, communications specialist for Canadian Blood Services, said this is causing a projected shortage because "platelets," key components of blood that are used in life-saving procedures and in the treatment of cancer patients, only has a five-day shelf-life.

"Our hospital patients need an ongoing fresh supply of platelets. We need donors to come in before those days especially ... to ensure we can meet demand of local hospital patients," he said.

Doucet said that, as of yesterday, hospitals are lacking about 500 units of blood for the next two weeks, about 60 per cent of the demand.

Not on an empty stomach

Paul Doucet said that you should ensure you're well hydrated before arriving at the blood-donation clinic. He recommended drinking lots of water and eating before giving blood.

He said blood donations are critically important for trauma patients, whose demand usually spikes over the holiday season.

The clinic, located at 1940 Gottingen St., is open today, tomorrow and Friday at select hours and will reopen on Dec. 27. You can also call 1-888-2-DONATE to find a mobile clinic in your area.

Doucet is asking people to find the time to make an appointment to donate blood.

"We're really hoping folks will think about blood donation as a wonderful thing to do over the holidays," he said. "It really does feel good to do this at this time of the year."

Weather dampens oval's first full day

It was the first full day the Canada Games oval was open to the public and it turned out to be a wash.

Yesterday's wet weather forced the closure of the oval to public skates. The closure came less than a day after about 200 people came out for its grand opening on Monday night at the North Common.

The oval will be HRM's marquee venue for the 2011 Canada Winter Games, taking place from Feb. 11 to 27.

Right up until the opening of the games, the oval will host up to four public skating sessions a day, seven days a week. It's unknown whether the oval will be open today. ● METRO

Hundreds of parkers dinged $50 a pop

It seems the message to not park on the street overnight isn't getting across to some people.

Through Sunday, close to 800 tickets have been issued since HRM's overnight winter parking ban took effect on Dec. 15.

The exact figure released yesterday is 795 — at $50 per ticket — sees at least $39,750 going to HRM coffers since the ban went into effect.

The fine jumps to $82.96 if the ticket isn't paid within 60 days.

The municipality said last week about 200 tickets were given out on the ban's first night.

Under the ban, any vehicle left on the street in the urban core between 1 a.m. to 7 a.m. could be hit with a ticket. ● PHILIP CROUCHER

Truck driver slams into toll booths

► Driver taken to hospital with serious injuries yesterday ► Cause of crash under investigation

JENNIFER TAPLIN
@METRONEWS.CA

A truck took out two toll booths on the MacKay Bridge early yesterday morning.

The crash happened just after 1:30 a.m. and a 52-year-old man was pulled from the wreck by firefighters and paramedics. He was rushed to the hospital with what appeared to be life-threatening injuries.

"There was extensive damage done to the vehicle so we're looking at whether alcohol and/or speed played a factor in the crash," said Theresa Rath, spokeswoman for Halifax Regional Police.

The pickup truck was heading to Halifax when it crashed. The bridge was closed to all Halifax-bound traffic until the debris was cleared by 7 a.m.

It took out lanes 12 and 13 — which were vacant — but there was someone working in the next lane at the time. No one, besides the driver, was injured.

Alison MacDonald, with the Bridge Commission, said as far as traffic tie-ups go, the timing of the accident wasn't so bad.

"We're not seeing the rush hours we would see normally."

Forces open new recruitment centre

► CFRC Halifax the first in a new model to be rolled out across Canada

Halifax's new Canadian Forces Recruitment Centre is quite different from the one Commodore Daniel MacKeigan walked into years ago.

"It was more of a bureaucratic-type affair," said MacKeigan. "You lined up and got your medicals often like you see in the old war movies, with everyone shuffling along stations."

CFRC Halifax, located at 6960 Mumford Rd., is the first in the Forces' new "signature concept" for recruitment centres across the country. It replaces the current offices located in the Scotia Square mall.

"(The new offices are) more welcoming and more modern, particularly. You don't walk into some stodgy bureaucratic environment that reminds you of an old-fashioned bank,"

The newbie

► Rod Horner, a 29-year old Halifax native, was the first recruit sworn in at the new facility yesterday. He'll soon start 13 weeks of basic training, working towards a communications position with the navy.

said MacKeigan. "It's now more of a sales experience."

MacKeigan likened the new recruitment philosophy to selling cars. When people see an advertisement for a car, they want to arrive at the dealership and see the same thing.

"I'm recreating that same positive experience about someone who wants to join the armed forces, or is thinking about it."

The new facility opened yesterday, with Senator

N.S. eyes review of physician contracts

The province wants to re-examine the way 545 specialist physicians are compensated.

The Department of Health released a report yesterday on Nova Scotia's "academic funding programs" — essentially contracts designed to attract and retain physicians who provide patient care but also teach at the Dalhousie

Medical School or conduct research.

The report, conducted by Deloitte, found that over a three-year period from 2006 and 2009, spending on those programs increased by 16 per cent to $173 million. The report states more accountability is needed in reporting value for money invested in the system.

Health Minister Maureen MacDonald said it's a matter of measuring returns on investment.

"The question is what are you getting for the payments and how do you quantify that ... to ensure you're getting good value for dollar?" she said.

Jane Brooks, president of Doctors Nova Scotia, said she's confident the province and physicians can improve the current system.

"We need to be accountable and transparent and make sure we're providing the best possible patient care we can," she said.

"We're happy to be sitting with the Department of Health and addressing common concerns."

Third storm this month batters coast

► Environment Canada predicting storm surge of between 2.6 and three metres along the eastern coast

The third major storm to slam into the East Coast this month caused coastal flooding yesterday that submerged roads and wharfs in eastern New Brunswick.

Around the Atlantic region, powerful wind gusts left thousands without electricity and a combination of wind and heavy seas sidelined ferry traffic between Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

In New Brunswick, the Emergency Measures Organization said much of the province's eastern coastline from Shediac to

Ferry delays

► About 1,500 passengers with reservations may be affected by the delays if the ferries between Cape Breton and Newfoundland can't leave until Thursday.

Miramichi was experiencing flooding and some coastal roads were closed.

In Cape Breton, high-sided vehicles and motorcycles were advised to stay off the Seal Island Bridge because of strong winds gusting up to 100 km/h.

The same types of vehicles were kept off of the Confederation Bridge to Prince Edward Island.

The high seas and strong winds combined to keep ferries between Newfoundland and Cape Breton in harbour. Marine Atlantic says its ferries are tied up to avoid the storm system.

Tara Laing, a spokeswoman for the ferry service, said in an interview that more than 200 tractor-trailers — including some Canada Post vehicles with Christmas packages and mail — are delayed.

Sea temps higher than normal

Forecasters with the Canadian Coast Guard are expecting a lighter than normal year for ice off the East Coast.

Water temperatures in the region are one to 2.5 degrees above normal, acting Supt. Fergus Francey said at a briefing yesterday.

Francey said they cannot predict how much lighter ice cover will be in the major shipping lanes, or the region's large bays and straits, because of anomalies including cold snaps or thaws.

"Normally, we know that ice will form and should stay formed up until the end of February, providing we don't have a warming trend," he said.

"After that, any ice that forms in the night usually doesn't last the daytime because the sun's too strong."

In a bad year, the entire Gulf of St. Lawrence is usually covered with ice that averages one to two metres in thickness.

Francey said he has seen it thicker in places.

"I've been out there and

Trend?

► Forecasters aren't sure whether it's an unusual year or part of a longer-term trend.

I've seen ridges up to six metres in thickness," he said.

"With that much ice, if you have any wind from any direction it will cause additional pressure and that's really what causes ships to get beset."

The Vatican yesterday sought to clarify the Pope's controversial comments about condoms and HIV, saying he by no means suggested condom use could be condoned as a means of avoiding pregnancy.

The Vatican's moral watchdog, the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, issued a statement saying some commentators had misrepresented the pope's remarks in a book-length interview released last month entitled Light of the World.

Teens charged in alleged sex assault

Two 15-year-old boys are facing charges after a young woman was allegedly raped while she was passed out at a Calgary light-rail transit station.

Police say the assault happened early Sunday morning after train service had ended for the day.

Staff Sgt. Dave Louie, a police spokesman, says two boys were at the station platform in the city's southwest when they came across the woman.

Louie says one of them acted as a lookout while the second suspect allegedly attacked the female.

The assault was not caught on a surveillance system that monitors LRT stations 24 hours a day, but a struggle between the woman and one of the suspects was.

The boys have been remanded in custody until their next court appearance.

Bogus causes

► Leeder's case made waves in the northern Ontario city of Timmins, with some people last month saying they couldn't believe a local woman was charged in a cancer scam so soon after Ashley Kirilow of Burlington, Ont., pleaded guilty to a similar ruse.

► And just weeks after that, Toronto police charged a man with fraud after he allegedly pretended to have terminal brain cancer. Police say friends of Christopher Gordon, 29, organized a fundraiser and collected $3,000.

A 21-year-old woman who faked cancer to defraud people in northern Ontario was handed six months of house arrest yesterday, with special provisions made after she told court she's pregnant.

Jessica Ann Leeder admitted in court last month that she defrauded co-workers at a Ford dealership of more than $5,000. She pretended to have lung and stomach cancer for close to a year, while accepting support, including money, from the community.

Although Leeder faced a maximum sentence of 14 years in prison, the Crown indicated before yesterday's sentencing hearing that Leeder would not face significant jail time.

"I'm very sorry for the actions I've done and I want the chance to make things right," Leeder, who had pleaded guilty to fraud over $5,000, told Judge Martin Lambert yesterday.

The judge noted Leeder spent "five hard days" in jail and took the guilty plea

Leeder told the court she is pregnant — the Crown said it could not verify that claim — and the sentence was tailored to the medical needs of an expectant mother.

Formation didn't help kayakers

Three kayakers exploring a river in Africa were paddling together in a defensive formation designed to ward off crocodile attacks when one of the massive beasts came from behind, ripping their leader from his boat and hauling him beneath the water.

The two Americans who survived — Ben Stookesberry and Chris Korbulic — said Tuesday on NBC's Today show that the formation was designed to make them appear too large to attack, and had served them well in waters considered more dangerous.

Stookesberry said the first he knew of the attack was hearing Hendri Coetzee of South Africa say, "Oh, my God." Then the experienced guide was gone. His body has not been found.

The kayakers were on the Lukuga River in Congo for a monthlong expedition documenting unexplored whitewater. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canada ranks high for cancer survival

► U.K.-initiated study looked at four cancers, six developed countries

A comparison of cancer survival rates in six developed countries puts Canada in the top three, alongside Australia and Sweden, and ahead of Norway, Denmark and the U.K.

The study, initiated in the United Kingdom and published online yesterday in The Lancet, examined survival rates for breast, lung, colorectal and ovarian cancer in 12 jurisdictions in the six countries.

"The main reason to look at these countries in relation to us is that they're countries of comparable wealth and very good quality information on cancer incidence, mortality and survival," said

Terrence Sullivan, president and CEO of Cancer Care Ontario.

"The value for us is really to see how we're doing as a benchmark with the other jurisdictions."

Senior author Dr. Heather Bryant described the findings as good news for Canadians.

Pace of inflation moderates

► November reversed trend of rising inflation established since July

The pace of inflation in Canada eased to an annual rate of two per cent last month as the prices of most consumer goods either saw a moderation in growth or outright declines from last year.

After a surprising spurt in October to an annualized rate of 2.4 per cent, inflation as measured by the consumer price index now appears headed back to moderate levels.

And November's figures from Statistics Canada also likely eliminated whatever concern Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney might have had that keeping interest rates at such historic lows much longer would trigger a sharp rise in prices. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minimum wage up in Quebec

Quebec is set to have the fourth-highest provincial minimum wage in the country after announcing yesterday the regular hourly rate will increase by 15 cents per hour to $9.65 on May 1.

Labour Minister Lise Thériault also said employees earning tips will get an extra 10 cents or $8.35 per hour.

292,000

Labour Minister Lise Thériault noted that about 292,000 workers, especially women, will benefit from the increase.

Ontario has the highest minimum wage in the country at $10.25 per hour, followed at $10 by Newfoundland and Labrador along with Nunavut.

Quebec's new rate matches the one set by Nova Scotia last spring when its rate increased from $8.60 per hour.

Thériault said many factors were considered in setting the new level, including the precarious economic situation and the fact that these workers have very modest revenues.

Since 2002, the province's minimum wage has increased 30 per cent, while the consumer price index has grown by 13 per cent. THE CANADIAN PRESS

STUFF THIS RESEARCH IN A STOCKING

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

'Tis a few days before Christmas and the Grinch is on the prowl.

Turns out the Grinch is a team at Simon Fraser University that has published the following anti-Christmas research: "Identity moderates the effects of Christmas displays on mood, self-esteem, and inclusion."

According to the professors and their grad student Grinch accomplices, their research shows that "the pervasive presence of Christmas displays in December makes people who do not celebrate Christmas feel like they don't belong, and it harms their emotional well-being."

For those of us struggling to breathe under a seasonal avalanche of Bing Crosby, this is nothing new, but the closer you look at the actual experiment, the more you have to ask: Don't these guys have anything better to do?

Here's what they did — they put one group of students in a lab decorated with a 12-inch Christmas tree and another group in a lab with no tree. Then they asked them how they felt.

Subjects didn't know they were in a study on the psychological effects of Christmas trees, but were asked to fill out a questionnaire about their mood.

Moods varied depending on the presence of the tree and the background of the respondents. In the presence of the tree, Sikh and Buddhist respondents felt less sure about themselves and felt excluded from the university. Christian students reported a more positive mood.

Putting aside questions about the research (maybe 12-inch plastic trees are culturally depressing. Maybe Sikh and Buddhist students require much bigger trees to feel good?), this just encourages the brand of self-righteousness that blights the yuletide season annually.

Some killjoy kicks Christmas out of the mall in case someone might feel excluded.

And now they've got research to back them up. "Studies show ..." they'll proclaim, ignoring the fact it's one study and one tree.

I wonder what would happen if the team put its subjects through the Halloween test. Or the Thanksgiving test.

At some level, they're all religious festivals, but they are also festivals.

I'm in favour of festivals. Thanks to multiculturalism, we keep adding them to the calendar: Hanukkah; Kwanzaa; Diwali; Narooz. If we keep this up, we can have a parade every day of the year. And how good is that?

The point is to use festivals to include people, not exclude them. We all believe different things, but if there's one belief that unites us all, it's simply this: Festivals are fun.

So, without prejudice, I offer the following greeting: Merry Christmas! (And happy holidays to everyone, even professors.)

Your Christmas forecast

Worth mentioning

Canadians dreaming of a white Christmas will likely get their wish, unless they live in the Maritimes or British Columbia.

Environment Canada senior climatologist David Phillips says much of the country will be wrapped in a white blanket on Christmas morning.

It could be the whitest Christmas ever in London and Sarnia, Ont.

London already has 48 centimetres while the Sarnia area was socked with 30-40 centimetres last week that stranded hundreds of motorists on Highway 402.

With nine centimetres on the ground and more

East Coast out of luck

on the way, Ottawa and Montreal are guaranteed a white Christmas.

Snow on the ground and below normal temperatures mean the Prairies already have their white Christmas in the bag, said Phillips.

There's just no chance for a white Christmas in Fredericton, Moncton, Halifax, Sydney, Charlotttetown, St. John's, and Corner Brook, N.L., said Phillips.

Vancouver won't have a white Christmas, but there's only been an 11 per cent chance over 55 years that the city has one anyway, said Phillips. In Victoria and along the B.C. coast, there's little chance, he said.

Scene in brief

30 Rock star Tracy Morgan is recovering from a kidney transplant.

A statement released Monday by Morgan's publicist says Morgan is doing well and taking much-needed time to recover from the surgery earlier this month.

The statement says the actor-comedian looks forward to returning to work on the New York-based NBC TV comedy after the holidays.

The 42-year-old Morgan plays the goofy star of a TV show on 30 Rock. Another 30 Rock cast member, Grizz Chapman, also received a new kidney earlier this year.

The Discovery Network show that turns a New York City cab ride into an instant game show is launching a spinoff version based in Chicago next spring. Comic Beth Melewski, a Second City cast member, will be behind the wheel.

The expansion comes after a triumphant year for Cash Cab. The series, itself a remake of a British TV's similar game based in London, won its second Daytime Emmy award for best game show. Ben Bailey won his first Emmy as best host.

The idea for the Chicago version came when

Bailey did a handful of tapings in Las Vegas, some that included entertainers such as Carrot Top playing for charity, and Discovery recognized how a new city with new people and new sites could give Cash Cab an entirely different feel, said Clark Bunting, Discovery's CEO.

Bunting is from Michigan, and he wanted to get the Midwest involved. Chicago, a city similar to New York with many cabs, seemed like it could work in a way that Los Angeles, for example, couldn't since there's relatively little cab use.

Melewski had the combination of smarts and knowledge of her city to work well in the cab, he said.

"Beth feels real-deal Chicago," he said. "You've got to have, for these shows at least, a feel for the city."

Spider Man actor falls 30 feet on Broadway musical set

The troubled Broadway musical Spider-Man: Turn Off the Dark was plagued by its fourth accident since it began previews last month when an actor performing an aerial stunt fell about 30 feet, fire officials said.

Firefighters were called to the Foxwoods Theatre in New York at about 10:45 p.m. Monday after the 31-year-old actor fell near the end of the latest preview performance.

He was taken to Bellevue Hospital with minor injuries, police said.

Police did not release the actor's name, but a performer in the show identified him as Christopher Tierney.

The performer spoke on condition of anonymity because the performer was not authorized to speak publicly about the accident.

A nurse at Bellevue Hospital said that a Christopher Tierney was admitted and was in stable condition, but would not provide details.

Other side of Jackie O

When most of us think of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, we think back to the perfectly coiffed first lady of the early '60s in a stylish shift, a string of pearls and a pill-box hat. Or the Jackie O of the next decade, the rich widow in huge sunglasses that shielded her from the world.

We probably don't think of a middle-aged working woman making her own photocopies, waiting in line to speak to the boss, or sitting cross-legged on the floor, arranging photos and puffing on cigarettes.

Yet this was her third act — the Jackie who joined the workforce in her mid-40s and spent nearly two decades as a book editor. By all accounts, it was one of the most satisfying periods of her life.

"She didn't do this just to have a job," says Bruce Tracy, a former colleague at the Doubleday publishing house. "She loved this. This is what she was passionate about." Suddenly, in a span of just a month,

"Her editorial career was longer than her two marriages combined. It says more about who she was as a person, because this is something she actually chose to do." WILLIAM KUHN two new books are examining this little-known part of her life, giving readers a new slant on a woman who has fascinated Americans like no other in our history.

Historian William Kuhn notes how women of Jackie's generation were taught to be great wives and great mothers, making it all the more striking that she would choose to learn a new career so relatively late in life. "It speaks to a kind of quiet feminism that she and other women of her generation had," he says.

Coens do justice to True Grit

True Grit
Genre: Western
Directors: Ethan Coen, Joel Coen
Stars: Jeff Bridges, Matt Damon and Hailee Steinfeld

Perhaps only artists as visionary and celebrated as The Coen Brothers would dare remake a film as beloved as True Grit and not be met with a tsunami of bile. The original 1969 picture (itself just re-released on Blu ray) starred John Wayne in the role that won him a much belated Oscar and was perhaps the last gasp of the classic, Ford/Hawks steeped mythic American western before the ultra-violent influence of the Italian "spaghetti western" consumed the genre.

Wisely, the Coen's have decided not to reproduce or "reinvent" it but rather go back to the source on which it was based, Charles Portis's novel. The resulting picture is nothing short of a joy to behold.

This time, instead of The Duke we have Jeff Bridges at his craggy, curmudgeonly best as lone wolf Marshall Rueben "Rooster" Cogburn, who when he's not defending his latest righteous kill in a court of law, sleeps his booze soaked self away in a cot behind a Chinese restaurant. Into his sagebrush dusted life comes 14 year old Mattie Ross (Hailee Steinfeld), who secures Cogburn to hunt the villain that killed her father and bring 'em back alive.

That's pretty much the story but narrative contrivance isn't what makes True Grit such a heart swelling, eye filling delight. It's a mixture of spot-on, giddy performances both lead and supporting; the delicate, lonely cinematography by Roger Deakins; Carter Burwell's aching and melancholy score and most importantly, it's The Coen's ace direction, milking mirth and rugged poetry out of every second of screen time. A gentle, rambling treasure of a film. ● CHRIS ALEXANDER

The King's Speech

Genre: Drama
Director: Tom Hooper
Stars: Colin Firth and Geoffrey Rush
You can't make this stuff up, this engaging, period bro-mance between the soon-to-be King George VI (Colin Firth) and a commoner (Geoffrey Rush) who is a speech therapist on the eve of the Second World War. But apparently it happened. The Duke of York, the second son of the late King George V, was saddled with a career threatening stammer that might not have mattered if the radio not just been invented or if his brother Edward hadn't just abdicated the throne to marry Wallis Simpson, thrusting him in to the top job. Now he is expected to address a nation on the verge of war. Both rollicking fun and a nail-biter. ● ANNE BRODIE

Little Fockers

Genre: Comedy
Director: Paul Weitz
Stars: Ben Stiller, Robert De Niro, Owen Wilson

A once mildly amusing comedy is now an insufferable franchise brought to new lows with Little Fockers. Not since It's A Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World have so many stars combined forces to create easily the worst film of their careers.

Once again an anxious Ben Stiller is put at odds his former CIA father-in-law Robert De Niro, who now hopes that Stiller can take over the family patriarchal reigns as The God-focker.

This isn't a movie. It's a Focking disgrace. ● PHIL BROWN

Lindsay under investigation

► Lohan has been undergoing treatment at the Betty Ford Center and its facilities since September

Lindsay Lohan is under investigation for an alleged misdemeanor battery against a female staffer at a rehab facility where the actress is receiving treatment, authorities said yesterday.

Riverside County sheriff's Deputy Herlinda Valenzuela said officers responded to a Betty Ford Center facility in Palm Desert on Dec. 12 shortly after 1 a.m. for an incident involving Lohan.

Valenzuela says a female staffer reported having a dispute with the Mean Girls star and that she wanted to pursue charges. No arrests were made and Valenzuela says detectives continue to look into the case. Their results will be presented to county prosecutors, who will decide whether to file a criminal case, Valenzuela said.

Messages for Lohan's attorney were not immediately returned. An email message seeking comment from a Betty Ford spokesman was not immediately returned, although the facility does not comment on its patients.

A judge overseeing her probation for a 3-year-old drunk driving case has required Lohan to remain at the rehab centre until Jan. 3. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Merry Christmas from Simon Cowell

Simon Cowell may not quite understand the Christmas spirit.

British X-Factor judge Louis Walsh reveals that Cowell got all the show's judges the same gift this year: A massive Botox gift certificate.

"On the final he says, 'I've got a present for you three,' and he gives us envelopes," Walsh tells Sharon Osbourne during a TV interview.

"I got home and opened (it) — it's ($4,500) worth of Botox."

Walsh says all three judges got the exact same thing.

OSCARS. James Franco has a simple reason for why he's co-hosting the Oscars this year with Anne Hathaway: His agents told him not to. "All my representatives were saying, 'No! Of course not!'" Franco tells Entertainment Weekly. "That always sparks something in me. So I said, 'Yes, of course!'" Because that reaction that they have is based on conventional wisdom of what makes a good career. And that can be boring — really boring."

Are Miller and Law set to tie the knot?

Jude Law and Sienna Miller are reportedly so happy together that the previously engaged couple are talking marriage — and maybe as soon as within the next two weeks.

Miller's sister, Savannah Miller confirms to the Daily Mail that the couple have been talking marriage recently, while another source says they may even tie the knot over New Year's in a quiet ceremony.

The pair were previously engaged in 2005 before his cheating scandal forced Sienna to call it off.

Travel in brief

A new Disney resort will open in phases, starting in May 2012.

The hotel will feature about 2,000 rooms, including 865 standard hotel rooms in Disney's "value" category.

The first phase will be a Finding Nemo-themed wing of suites. Another wing in the Lion King theme will follow. The final phase will feature the Little Mermaid theme.

If you're tired of all those massive Mexican resort towns away from the popular bars and beaches, then small-town Huatulco might just be the perfect place for you.

This burgeoning West Coast resort area southeast of Acapulco is being built from the ground up by the Mexican government, with only about 15 luxury resort hotels surrounded by nine small bays.

That lack of clutter makes for no less than 36 stunning, private, untouched beaches, all around gorgeous scenery you can't find in many Mexican resort towns anymore. Of course, the surrounding natural habitat is all the more wild and untouched, making for some unique adventures.

Finding myself a few hours north of the coast, I felt like I was in the middle of the Amazon. During a gondola ride on secluded

La Ventanilla Lagoon, the iguanas, turtles and tropical birds were plentiful, and so were 10-foot-plus crocodiles nudging by our little wooden vessel.

The area is also home to the Mexican turtle centre, where baby sea turtles are hatched and released regularly.

Another hidden treasure worth visiting lies tucked away in the mountains about two hours away from the coast.

The so-called Magic Water Falls are not only beautiful, but legend has it if you bathe in these remote mystical waters, they will magically erase wrinkles and instantly restore a youthful appearance.

If you want to beat the crowds to this obscure paradise, better do it soon. Over the next decade, there are plans to add 10 times the number of hotel rooms to accommodate two million tourists a year.

What to do

► Visit the Tipsy Blowfish. Located in quiet La Crucecita, this is one of the funkier bars in all of Mexico. Take in great live music and easygoing small-town culture in a funky outdoor environment. Be sure to ask owner Texas Joe for some of the coldest beer in town.

► Go on a Mexican Outback Safari. One of the newest attractions in Huatulco, this eco-adventure takes you to the heart of the tropical jungle and into far-removed villages. You'll cross mangroves and taste tropical fruit, and cap it off with some snorkelling in the remote fishing village of San Augustin.

Bunches of punches for your holiday parties

► Whether light and fizzy or dense and decadent, there's a punch recipe to complement every soirée

Following the adage that everything old is new again, the hot trend in party drinks this holiday season is punch, served in, you guessed it, a punch bowl.

Various sources say punch was introduced to England from India in the early 17th century and then it spread to other countries. But no matter where it hails from, it's a drink that inspires conviviality through slow sipping around the punch bowl.

The word punch is said to be derived from the Hindustani word "panch," which means "five." This can be traced back to the "rule of five" stating that a punch must have at least five ingredients.

"These must be something sweet, sour, strong, weak and the addition of

Stir things up

Here are some tips on preparing punch:

- Estimate the number of servings you will need. Generally punch is served in 125-ml (4-oz) round cups or glasses. Plan for three to four servings per guest.
- Use quality ingredients.

- If garnishing with fruit don't overload the bowl.
- Have as many of the ingredients chilled before beginning to make punch.
- Offer guests a non-alcoholic version of a punch that contains alcohol. The two bowls should be separated and clearly identified.

spices," explains Christopher Freeland, a spokesperson for the Liquor Control Board of Ontario in Toronto.

Tanya Steel, editor-in-chief of Epicurious, says the resurgence of punch may also be a harbinger of the times. "I think punches are a big beverage trend this holiday season because they are festive to look at and imbibe and it enables the host to stretch a little liquor a long way," she said.

Freeland points out that punch "can be a great time saver for the host as it can be made up in advance."

"It also allows the ingredients to marry for a number of hours, giving it more flavour," he says.

► Pear Tree Punch features a flamed orange garnish for a special twist.

Pear Tree Punch

Preparation:

- 1 In a pitcher, place all ingredients and stir to mix. Pour into punch bowl holding ice.
- 2 To flame an orange zest: Using a sharp knife, cut an oval tab of zest about one by three inches.

- 3 With the skin pointing outward bend the oval toward the flame of a lighter over the drink. The flame should ignite the oils which will squirt from the zest. Add the flamed orange peel.

Ingredients :

- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) single malt Scotch
- 10 dashes orange bitters or regular bitters
- 750 ml (3 cups) pear juice
- Flamed orange zest, for garnish

Nod to Nog

Preparation:

- 1 To make vanilla syrup, add equal parts sugar and boiling water to a heatproof vessel, stir to dissolve and let cool. Add 2 to 3 drops of vanilla extract or 1/4 vanilla bean. Stir to mix.
- 2 Combine ingredients with blender and add to a punch bowl. Keep chilled.

- 3 Garnish each serving with a pinch of nutmeg.

Ingredients :

- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) Canadian whisky
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) vanilla syrup (see step 1)
- 750 ml (3 cups) cream
- 8 egg whites
- Nutmeg, for garnish

► Homemade vanilla syrup adds a new twist to a holiday favourite.

Ginger Pineapple Punch

Preparation:

- 1 To make ginger syrup: In a 1- to 1.5-l saucepan, bring water, sugar and ginger to a boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved.
- 2 Simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes, then remove from heat and steep uncovered for 15 minutes.

- 3 Pour syrup through a sieve into a bowl, discarding ginger. Cover and chill until cold, about 2 hours.
- 4 To make punch: In a punch bowl or pitcher, stir together ginger syrup and fruit juices. Stir in sparkling water and ice.

Ingredients :

- Ginger syrup:
- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) water
  - 250 ml (1 cup) sugar
  - 250 ml (1 cup) thinly sliced fresh ginger (125 g/1/4 lb from two 12-cm/5-inch pieces)

Punch:

- 750 ml (3 cups) unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled

- 50 ml (1/4 cup) fresh lemon juice (3 to 5 lemons)
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) fresh lime juice (4 to 6 limes)
- 750 ml (3 cups) sparkling water, chilled
- 1 l (4 cups) ice cubes
- Lemon/lime slices for garnish

Note: A splash of vodka or gin transforms this lively punch into a festive cocktail.

tion, Scott Seltzer was given a termination package consisting of a three-week severance payment required by legislation and an offer for an additional payment in exchange for signing a release.

Instead of calling a lawyer, Seltzer called the B.C. Ministry of Labour for advice. Seltzer was told that in B.C. a worker "could not sign their legal rights away," which is technically correct but practically misleading. Each province has legislation that sets out minimum severance. Here, Seltzer was entitled to a minimum payment of three weeks' salary. However, since Seltzer was entitled to more than just the minimum, his employer asked him to sign a release for the additional payments — which is an agreement not to later sue. Although this was an issue that most employment lawyers would spot as a matter of course, the Ministry representative failed to clarify the distinction.

Relying on what he was told, Seltzer mistakenly thought he had nothing to lose by signing the release, believing he could take the extra money and then challenge his employer for more. However, when he later made a human rights complaint, his claim was dismissed at a preliminary hearing because of the release he had signed. Why did this happen and how could it be avoided?

Most provincial employment ministries in Canada have hotlines for employees to call to obtain "information" about their rights. The problem is that this information is often construed as "advice," since advice is often inappropriately dispensed by the ministry representatives who answer the phone. And, since most people will believe, even if incorrectly, that they received advice from a government body, they are unlikely to later pay for a lawyer's time to obtain a second opinion.

Does my job bring me joy?

► Experts emphasize that now is the best time of year to evaluate your career choices

DREW HINSHAW
LIFE@METRONews.ca

As the stressful season of year-end deadlines and pre-Christmas chaos boils down to a cozy yuletide break, there's no more fitting a moment, career counselors say, to take a pause by the fireside and reflect on whether your daily work is meaningful. "A rare few people have a real career plan, some people have a vague idea of what they should do, and most people have no formal goals," Executive Coach Jane Cranston says. "It's when they get into their mid-30s that they start asking 'where am I?'"

Better to start contemplating your life goals, she says, on December 30th than your 30th December.

That's true not just because the solstice has a magic for forcing normally rushed professionals to peer backwards at the years gone by – but because the winter months happen to be the prime time window to execute a career swap.

"Believe it or not, December, January and the first half of February are counter-intuitively, the best time to find a new job," Fearless Career Change author Marky Stein notes.

But they're also pretty good months to find the joy in your old job.

Start by using the holiday time, Stein recommends, to ask yourself what's right about your job, moving from basic questions – Does your boss respect you? Do your co-workers understand you? – towards more core considerations, like "Am I proud of what I do?" she suggests.

"Finally, there's the big existential question of 'Would I like to be remembered after my retirement or death as doing the position I am now doing and doing it well?'" she offers.

"People have to honestly face that question at one point or another."

A career counselor can help break down that daunting dilemma into a mere challenge.

"We help people set and attain goals," Cranston says. "The evidence is that most people attain more, faster when they have a coach."

► Once the eggnog has run out and the carols have been sung, it's time to ask yourself if you really want to go back to work.

Reaching high to score a dream

► Ezra Frech won't let a disability stop him from becoming a sporting legend – just like his hero Pau Gasol

ELISABETH BRAW

METRO WORLD NEWS

Ezra Frech and Pau Gasol frequently get together to play basketball, and have plenty of fun doing it. That's somewhat surprising, given that Ezra is a four-year-old with a prosthetic leg, and Gasol is a basketball star – the NBA's best power-forward, to be precise.

But Gasol is a UNICEF Goodwill Ambassador and has made it his mission in life to help children in his adopted hometown of Los Angeles, where he plays for the Los Angeles Lakers. Sometimes he helps the Los Angeles Fire Department teach children about fire safety, sometimes he visits children in the hospital, and sometimes he plays basketball with Ezra.

The duo spoke with Metro — Ezra about his dreams for the future, and Gasol about his own aspirations he had as a child.

When I grow up:

Frech: I want to be a basketball player for the Los Angeles Lakers. And after that, I want to be a coach. My prosthetic legs work great. In my spare time, I want to be a UNICEF Ambassador like Pau Gasol.

Gasol: It was a dream to become a basketball player, but I was also interested in other things, like science and music. If I hadn't become a basketball player, I would have become a scientist or doctor.

My family will consist of:

Frech: I will marry my beautiful girlfriend Sophia, who I met on the blue playground. We will have three boys and two girls and a golden retriever.

Gasol: I'm a family guy, so I always wanted to have several children, three or so, and a wife. The biggest privilege of my career is that I can serve as a role model for children and inspire them.

I will live in:

Frech: I will live four blocks from Staples Center where the Lakers play. And I will drive a car that turns into a helicopter.

Gasol: I didn't know any place outside of Spain. I wanted to grow up and become famous in my hometown.

My hobbies will be:

Frech: Surfing and playing soccer.

Gasol: I played the piano as a child and still do. I have a piano at home. I play music by the usual classical composers, but right now I have a book of French folk songs I love to play from. When I was little I saw my first opera, Tosca, and it's still my favourite opera.

Beaton moves on to Screaming Eagles

Lower Sackville's Alex Beaton was dealt to the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles in the lone deal yesterday as a quiet QMJHL trade period continued.

Beaton, a 20-year-old who has 199 games of QMJHL experience, was moved from the Gatineau Olympiques for a package that included 18-year-old forward Felix Bergeron.

The move leaves the Screaming Eagles with four over-agers, with Beaton currently playing for the junior A Woodstock (N.B.) Slammers. He is third in Maritime Junior Hockey League scoring with 60 points in 33 games.

Beaton posted 47 points in his best QMJHL season in 2008-09 with the Lewiston Maineiacs.

Beaton is an insurance policy if Screaming Eagles

GM Mario Durocher trades one of his current three over-agers: Defenceman Spencer Metcalfe, forward Taylor MacDougall and goalie Andrew Hayes.

"If we don't (get) the price we want, we're going to keep them because they bring a lot of leadership to our dressing room with our young guys," Durocher said of his current over-agers.

Canada answers Swedish challenge

The Canadian national junior team overcame a stiff challenge from a fast and aggressive Swedish squad, riding goals from Brayden Schenn, Zack Kassian and Ryan Johansen plus a stellar 29-save performance from goaltender Olivier Roy in a 4-1 exhibition win last night.

A patriotic and proud crowd at Toronto's Air Canada Centre went home happy but there was lots for head coach Dave Cameron and his staff to dissect afterwards.

The Canadians have one more warmup game — tomorrow against Finland in Kitchener, Ont. — before opening the world junior hockey championship in Buffalo, N.Y., on Boxing Day against Russia, and there was plenty in their play to tighten up.

Max Friberg scored midway through the third period for Sweden, but Johansen picked a loose puck in front of the net and fired it home at 15:55 to settle things down, and Cody Eakin put it away by scoring into an empty net with

A night after dismantling a soft Swiss squad 8-0 in Oshawa, Ont., the Canadians were put on their heels by the darting yellow jerseys of a Sweden team that answered every hit and didn't back down an inch.

The Swedes arrived in Toronto missing 10 bags of equipment, and only practised Monday after Hockey Canada sent them on a shopping spree for some replacement gear. But they got their stuff about three hours before gametime and found their legs immediately, using their speed to take away time and space from the Canadians.

It's not every day that Mitsubishi introduces new models to North America, but it had to happen sooner or later.

Technically, though, the 2011 RVR (called the Outlander Sport in the U.S.) is a spin-off of the current Outlander wagon. In fact, both models use the same platform as the compact Lancer sedan. But with a 37-centimetre reduction in overall length over the Outlander, the RVR actually appears radically different. It's also geared to a different audience and seems destined to fulfill a different mission in life.

Without doubt, the RVR's attractively proportioned shape appears, well, sporty, as opposed to the sheetmetal on the family-values-looking Outlander. In fact, only the senior Outlander's outside mirrors are shared with the upstart. From stem to stern, the design is more cohesive and works well with the Lancer Evolution-style open-mouth nosepiece that Mitsubishi claims was inspired by jet-fighter air intakes.

Naturally, a price must be paid for pruning more than a foot from the RVR's length. The bigger Outlander is available with a third row and the RVR is not. Simple.

Although the cargo hold has been similarly shortened, it remains more than adequate.

If need be, the storage space can be maxed out by folding forward the split 60:40 rear seat.

The five-passenger seating arrangement will suit most needs although we wonder about the polka-dot-like base seat coverings. For drivers, a display screen indicating fuel, outside temperature, odometer reading and other vitals separates the dashboard's large twin gauge pods.

The RVR's thrust is provided by the Lancer-based 2.0-litre four-cylinder engine that makes 148 horsepower and 145 pound-feet of torque.

That's not exactly earth-shattering compared to the Hyundai Tucson's 175-horsepower engine or the Volkswagen Tiguan's 200 turbocharged horses, but it should be enough to make the 1,410-kilogram RVR (about 180 kilograms lighter than the original Outlander) perform in a lively manner.

The RVR's performance might not entirely live up to its sporty intentions (Mitsubishi has more potent four-cylinder engines that it could easily draw upon), but for style and content, this shrink-wrapped wagon should earn a spot in the big leagues.

► Think 'transmission' when shopping for a used Volvo V70

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Recognized as a world-leader in occupant protection, models from the Volvo brand are often sought out by shoppers prioritizing safety on the move.

Safety is serious business for the Swedes, and a Volvo wagon's always been a sure way to get the wife and kids around with plenty of peace of mind.

The second-generation Volvo V70 was a wagon available to Canadian shoppers from 2001 to 2007 model years inclusive. A more rugged "Cross Country" variant of the V70, called the XC70, was also available. Where confident

The 4-1-1

- Model: 2001 to 2007 Volvo V70/XC70
- Vehicle Type: Wagon/crossover wagon
- Approximate used price range: $6,000 to $18,000

all-season family travels are concerned, these two machines really hit the mark.

All models got five-cylinder power from a range of naturally-aspirated and turbocharged engines outputting between 168 and 247 ponies. Manual or automatic transmissions were available, as was All Wheel Drive (AWD), depending on the model in question. Ultimately, the V70, XC70 and even S60 sedan in this generation shared virtually the same hardware under their skin.

Inside, look for flexible

interior space, a generous cargo hold and plenty of storage to keep occupants organized. Volvo wagons are known for a solid, quiet ride and bolted-down feel of security and plantedness, and this generation is no exception.

What Owners Like

Comfort, handling and security are all highly rated by owners, as is interior space, design, and drivetrain refinement.

What Owners Hate

Some owners report that careful and light-footed driving is required to achieve good mileage. Owners of models with the lower-output powerplants typically wish for more performance.

Common Issues

Considering a used Volvo

wagon in this generation? Think "transmission". Numerous owners have reported gearbox issues that have required replacement, sometimes more than once. This well-documented problem means ensuring proper transmission integrity is vital to a successful purchase.

The Verdict

To the majority of V70s and XC70 owners, the driving experience and confidence more than compensate for potential issues. All said, used shoppers should shop patiently and carefully, get service records and look for a model that's familiar to their local Volvo dealer. Be sure to snatch up any extended powertrain warranties that may be available.

Just to be safe.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Are the conclusions you have reached about a certain situation your own conclusions, or are they ideas you have picked up from other people or from the media? Think for yourself today.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You may be tempted to do something that will gain you an advantage over your rivals, but is it ethical? If not you are strongly advised to play by the rules.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Just because the grass looks greener on the other side of the fence does not mean you have been moving in the wrong direction. All roads eventually lead to where you most need to go.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 An idea or belief you have always taken for granted is beginning to show signs of wear and tear. Maybe it's time to replace it with something a bit more up to date.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 A relationship is at a turning point and what happens today or tomorrow will seal its fate one way or the other. It may not be easy to call it a day but if that's what your heart tells you then what choice do you have?

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Mercury, your ruler, is at right angles to Jupiter today, which means you will need to make an extra effort to get your message across. Make sure you shout at the right people.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 History always repeats itself, so if what you see or hear reminds you of the past make sure you act on that knowledge.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Your trust in someone has taken a bit of a nose-dive in recent weeks and what happens today is unlikely to change your opinion that they don't know what they are doing. Keep your distance. Stupidity can be contagious.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Take what you hear from a colleague or friend with a large pinch of salt. Mind planet Mercury, at odds with your ruler Jupiter, warns they don't know what they are talking about.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Take the chance to go back and take care of something you should have dealt with a long time ago. If you still can't get it right then maybe it's just too much for you. Do something else.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 You may be at a loss to explain why a friend or relative is acting so strangely but you know how illogical some people can be. Not everyone shares your ability to focus only on facts.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Hopefully you know how to keep a secret, because if you go blabbing about a friend's peccadilloes it will be you who ends up looking bad.
